MEMORANDUM FOR: Deputy Director for Support

SUBJECT : Executive Interchange Program

1. Mr. Joseph T. McCullen, Jr., Executive Director of the President's Commission on Personnel Interchange, came out to see me on 1 February to explain the Executive Interchange Program. Thereafter I discussed it in general terms with the Director. He was not enthused with the prospect of sending any of our good, young officers off into industry, as he thought we might lose them. He agreed with me that it would be very difficult to include industry people within the Agency on a one-year visitation. (Nonetheless, I think this well worth looking at, as there might be certain limited jobs where the security exposure would not be unreasonable.)

2. The Director reacted very favorably to the idea of having the current class of these industry representatives out to the Agency for a Brookings-type meeting and briefing. I am not sure we need to involve the four Deputy Directors, but we could perhaps get a level of representation closer to the age and grade of the visitors. It would also be a good experience for some of our middle officers to deal with such individuals. Mr. McCullen said they would be most interested in such a visit and suggested sometime in March. I think something on the order of a two-hour visit from 1500-1700 would be appropriate, with an opening organizational briefing by me followed by a question-and-answer period with various other Agency representatives.

3. Could you review this and give me your thoughts, after which we can get in touch with Mr. McCullen to make the necessary arrangements.

AN ADVANCED TRAINING PROGRAM

00200070020-7

The Senior Seminar in Foreign Policy, held annually since 1958, is a component of the Foreign Service Institute, Department of State. The Senior Seminar, which lasts from August to June, is the most advanced program of study of factors influencing international relations and foreign policy offered by any Agency of the United States Government. The Fourteenth Session is limited to an honor group of 30 senior officials. Two-thirds of these are officers of the American Foreign Service who are being trained for important field assignments such as Ambassador or AID Director and comparable posts in Washington. The remaining third are officers possessing an equal degree of achievement and length of service nominated by the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps and other U. S. Government Departments and Agencies in Washington.

The average age of Members is in the mid-40's. Their average length of U.S. Government service is over 20 years.

Membership in the Seminar is awarded on the basis of excellence of performance, demonstrated leadership and potential for the assumption of greater responsibilities.

AN OBJECTIVE: Updating knowledge of the USA

In addition to reviewing foreign policy problems, an important phase of the Seminar's study program is designed to bring up-to-date the Membership's knowledge of the latest social, economic, scientific and industrial developments in the USA. Officers serving the United States abroad do their best to keep up with the dynamic changes taking place in this country, but they can represent the United States better if they possess recent, first-hand experience, acquired while listening on the spot to the views of eminent educators, industrialists, scientists, business and labor leaders, social workers, governors, mayors and law enforcement authorities. During their ten months of study, Members also perform individual travel to the regions of the world in which they have a special interest and prepare, as
